Tourism Outlook by State – Domestic Visitor Nights

The latest Domestic Tourism Forecasts as published by Tourism Research Australia in December 2022 has presented the following outlook:

- ‘Domestic number of visitor nights to surpass pre-pandemic levels in 2023.
- Holiday nights to remain strong and return to pre-pandemic levels more quickly than nights spent away from home for the purpose of visiting friends and relatives (VFR) or for business.
- Visitor nights to all states and territories to move higher than pre-pandemic levels by 2024, with most states expected to reach 2019 levels by 2023.’

A nighttime photograph of a modern urban building complex in Brisbane. The image features several tall, curved skyscrapers with illuminated windows, set against a dark sky. In the foreground, a wide, curved walkway with a glass railing and a set of stairs lead up to the building. The scene is lit with warm yellow lights from the building's interior and exterior, contrasting with the cool blue tones of the skyscrapers.

Risks and Limitations

DATA SOURCES

In order to produce the hotel market outlooks in this report, Horwath HTL has collected and collated historical data and forecasts from the following sources:

- Historical hotel market performance data from STR as at June 2023;
- Historical economic data and forecasts from the DAE Business Outlook June 2023 Edition;
- International Tourism Forecasts have been adjusted by HHTL based on updated actual short term visitor arrivals up to May 2023 and Tourism Research Australia's December 2022 forecast.
- Historical tourism data as up to March 2023;
- The latest Domestic Tourism Forecasts as published by Tourism Research Australia in December 2022;
 - Regarding domestic visitation, Horwath HTL has adopted the recovery timeline as published by TRA in its December 2022 domestic tourism forecast, with adjustments to the outlook for CY 2023 and 2024 based on actual recent results and used growth relative to the long-term average, following such adjustments we have reverted to the ABS outlook for CY 2025 onwards.
- Supply pipeline information as collected in the Horwath HTL databases.

Adjustments made to our econometric model as described above, together with updated DAE economic projections, result in longer-term impacts for the market. We believe that the current modelling presents a reasonable picture of the outlook for hotel market performance, however, with such uncertain times that the industry is currently faced with, any outlook should be treated with caution.

Risks and Limitations

Our assessments and projections are predicated upon a number of assumptions and expectations. In particular, it should be recognised that hotel performance is particularly vulnerable to exceptional events. Unforeseen events that could severely disrupt hotel performance include, and are not limited to:

- Economic disruptions, such as the Asian or Global Financial Crises;
- Acts of terrorism, such as 9/11 or the Bali bombings;
- Natural events, such as a flood, tsunami or earthquake;
- Health scares, such as SARS, MERS, Avian Flu, Covid-19 Flu;
- Political unrest and instability such as recently occurred in Thailand and Hong Kong;
- Failure of local infrastructure, such as air-traffic disruptions, strikes, inadequate transport systems etc.; or
- Significant and/or concentrated additions to accommodation supply.

Whilst most of the above have played out to varying degrees over the last decade in various countries, including in Australia, these events remain difficult if not impossible to predict and can often not be anticipated.

Furthermore, unforeseen changes to the supply and demand of transient accommodation, including events that result in a material change to the business environment generally, could severely disrupt hotel performance in Australia's key transient accommodation markets, and as a result the future trading environment may be significantly different to that envisaged as at the time of preparation of this report.

Our conclusions as presented in this report are a reflection of the market conditions which we believe may eventuate during the forecast period. That said, it must be recognised that all estimates are based on our best judgement at this time.
